" " 4 : - a continuation of photo no. 3--the grain pier, at the foot of which is the passage where the military check the papers of personnel in transit. Just outside the passage can be seen the office of the Inflat.

" " 5 : Naval motorboat without particular characteristics. To the left can be seen a naval tug, dead in the water, with a reciprocating engine of not more than 600 horse power. To the right is an inhabited part of the shoreline.

" " 6 : This picture deals with an inhabited part of the shoreline,--in the water can be seen a piled pier which has been abandoned.

" " 7 : A hulk normally used for the storage of chains and buoys on the deck. It was located off the shore with its bow at the cemetery. Opposite the stern of the relic can be seen a low white structure on a level area. It is the seat of the Inflat. In the left background, on the hill, can be seen a highway which was frequented by military vehicles.

" " 8 : On the hill can be seen the highway frequented by military traffic.

" " 9 : In the right of this picture can be found a vessel aground, alongside which there was a pontoon which was working to salvage the vessel; frequently when the pontoon was laden, a tug took it directly to the naval zone.
